Kim,

I talked to Dale early this morning and suggested that we meet during his next trip to Houston when we decide on timing of our project.

Vince,

If Dale comes in to see you, it looks like Eric might be available to meet with you as well. It would be a good opportunity for Eric to meet Dale and get a little more information on his model. Eric's phone number is X54713.

Thanks,

Kim.

Vince/Kim:

I am flying to Houston tonight and wondered if it would fit one or both of your schedules to get together this coming Tuesday sometime for 1/2 hour or so. I really want to reinitiate the conversations MarketPoint was having with John Goodpasture and you, and he said either or both of you were the right people to continue after his responsibility shift. John was quite positive about the idea of Enron acquiring MarketPoint NARG through license, and he implied that one or both of you would be carrying the ball in that direction after he handed it to you.

Would this coming Tuesday morning at 930 am be a good time for you guys? If so, please give me an email shout at the above address or leave a message on my voicemail at (650)218-3069. I think you will be truly impressed with the scope and progress we have been able to make with both the short run NARG and the long run NARG in which you were interested (not to mention our power model). The progress is noticeable since you saw it. Both long and short term NARG are having quite an impact on a number of gas decisions at the moment ranging from Venezuelan LNG, North American LNG import terminals and term, gas basis calculations, trading support, power plant development, gas-to-power price spreads in key markets, veracity of heat rate trades, bank financings, storage field evaluation, and which new pipelines we can expect to see enter and which are dogs.

I really hope we can fit it in and get our discussions moving in a mutually productive direction again. I think NARG can help you become even more successful, and I look forward to working with you.

We have a new office address and new phone number as well. (We move in May 1.)
