Subject: Administration Energy Policy

Unlike the past Administration where Secretary Richardson served as the lead on energy policy, the Bush Administration has created a new, interagency group to develop energy policy. "The National Energy Policy Development Group" was created for this purpose and will be lead by Vice President Cheney with former Senate Energy Committee Staff Director Andrew Lundquist serving as the group's director. As such, rather than focusing our policy meetings at DOE, we should refocus instead on developing policy with this group which includes DOE, DOA, DOI, Treasury, etc. Brian Malnak is the new Senate Energy Committee Staff Director.
